FREE YOUR MIND The Vantage Point evo system sets you free—free from clutter, drywall destruction, and space-hogging furniture. The super-slim system lets you hang any size flat-panel or rear-projection TV on any wall in any room—and conceal cables in the 4-inch space behind the unit. Rearrange the shelves and mounts, or expand the frame to add gaming or home office equipment. The 16-by-16-inch wood veneer panels come in cherry, maple, walnut, espresso, or black ash; frames and shelf brackets come in black, silver or graphite.

THE ZEPPELIN SOARS An initial assessment of Bowers & Wilkins' Zeppelin is that it is a blatant cry for attention in a world seemingly filled with iPod docks. But closer examination reveals that simply is not the case. Its shape is the result of B&W's engineering efforts to deliver uncompromised sound from the unit's two tweeters, two midrange drivers, and single 5-inch woofer. B&W also has ensured ease of operation by endowing the Zeppelin with only two control buttons.

BLACK MAGIC The BDI Avion Noir is design and performance magic. Consider its glass cabinetry fronts—the smoke-and-mirrors act subtly conceals gear, but is remote-friendly. Hate having to mount your TV at a manufacturer-chosen height? Your wish is BDI's command: The mounting brackets are adjustable. Even better, all cables vanish into thin air, thanks to the unit's steel mounting tubes.

WELL-ROUNDED SOUND Because sharp edges can wreak havoc with audio, they have been banished from the Proclaim Audioworks DMT-100 loudspeaker. In addition to each driver having its own spherical enclosure, a unique stand ensures unencumbered and unsurpassed user alignment of height, spacing, and direction. An external cross-over network rounds out the package, so to speak, by allowing for electronic basking. The DMT-100s are offered in cue-ball white and eight-ball black finishes.
